»A small journey through history that pleasantly captures the reader without giving an agonising flood of data.«

Westfälische Nachrichten

In this book, Christian Adam tells the story of the city on the Spree from its beginnings in the Middle Ages to the start of the 21st Century – vividly, compactly, and supplemented by a wealth of illustrations.

Christian Adam, born in Lörrach in 1966, studied German and journalism in Berlin after training as a photographer. From 1998 he worked for various publishing houses as an editor and programme manager. Since 2015, he has been Head of the Publications Department at the Centre for Military History and Social Sciences of the German Armed Forces in Potsdam.
